Valentine Shock

St Valentine 'Not the saint of love'

Britain's Roman Catholic Church is advising lovelorn singles to direct their 14 February requests for love to St Raphael, rather than St Valentine. Over the years St Valentine has come incorrectly to be associated with finding love, the Church says. He is the patron saint for those who have already found their soul mate. St Raphael is the patron saint for happy encounters and it is to him those fearing the Valentine's post should properly direct their prayers.

Why did the banana go out with the prune...? Because he couldn't get a date!

We have been showing love to your gardens of late, the firm we are using is called Cutters. We are doing the ground work now so that your gardens will be nice for you to use come those lovely spring days we look forward to.

Students love SLA we are pleased to say that we have rented all of our properties for 2010/11 however you could still take advantage of our £25.00 FIND A FRIEND offer as we have some single rooms in house shares up for grabs so if you know anyone looking recommend us. Tom moving into Pretoria Rd next year earnt himself a packet recently, who will you be taking out on Feb 14th Tom?

Love your planet...

Turn the heating down one degree and snuggle up.

Turn that TV off when you're not watching it!

Twilight fans... What is a Vampires Sweetheart called...? His Ghoul-friend

Avoid leaving appliances on standby

Televisions, DVDs and other appliances left on standby pump one million tons of carbon into the atmosphere each year. The wasted energy could power 400,000 homes. Up to 85 per cent of power used by a video recorder is consumed on standby. Make sure you turn them off properly.

Don't leave appliances charging unnecessarily

If you leave your phone or other gadgets charging they continue to use electricity even once charged. When the charger feels hot that's because it's wasting electricity. Make sure you unplug them as soon as they've finished.

Make use of natural warmth from sunlight

Sunlight is a wonderful source of natural heat as well as light. If it's sunny outside then open curtains and blinds to let the maximum energy into the room (but close them at night to keep the warmth in!)

What did the light bulb say to the switch...? You turn me on

SLA: Looking after you...Rebecca of College Rd next year also recommended a large crowd and is soon to be seen skipping to the bank too! £25.00 per person!!!
